Course Introduction

Adversarial Information Operations and Psychological Warfare Training Course provides participants with a deep understanding of the strategies, tactics, and tools used in modern information warfare, propaganda campaigns, and psychological operations. This course explores how state and non-state actors manipulate information to influence public perception, disrupt decision-making, and achieve strategic objectives. Participants will learn to identify disinformation, assess threat environments, and develop countermeasures, integrating intelligence analysis, communication strategies, and digital monitoring techniques. The course emphasizes the critical role of psychological warfare in shaping narratives, influencing target audiences, and reinforcing national security objectives in complex geopolitical contexts.

Through a combination of theoretical frameworks, real-world case studies, and practical exercises, participants will gain the skills to design and implement effective information operations strategies. The course covers social media manipulation, cyber-enabled influence campaigns, cognitive bias exploitation, and strategic messaging while highlighting ethical considerations and compliance with international law. By the end of the training, learners will be able to critically evaluate adversarial operations, craft counter-information campaigns, and enhance organizational resilience against psychological and informational threats.
