

Gender and Behavioral Science Training Course

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Gender Studies	Duration	5 Days
Base Fee	$1,500 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

Gender and Behavioral Science is an interdisciplinary field that integrates gender equality, behavioral insights, social norms, and decision-making science to address systemic inequalities and promote inclusive development. Gender and Behavioral Science Training Course explores how implicit bias, cognitive heuristics, cultural norms, and institutional structures shape gendered behaviors and outcomes in society. By leveraging behavioral economics, psychology, and data-driven approaches, participants will gain practical tools to design interventions that foster equity, inclusion, and sustainable social change.

In today's rapidly evolving world, organizations and policymakers are increasingly using nudge theory, human-centered design, and evidence-based policy frameworks to influence positive behavioral change. This training equips participants with cutting-edge knowledge on gender-responsive programming, behavioral diagnostics, and impact evaluation, enabling them to design and implement transformative solutions in sectors such as governance, business, health, and education.
