

Impact Measurement in Digital Financial Services Training Course

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Microfinance & Financial Inclusion	Duration	5 Days
Base Fee	$1,500 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

Digital Financial Services (DFS) are transforming financial inclusion by expanding access to underserved populations through mobile money, agent networks, digital credit, and fintech innovations. As DFS ecosystems grow, measuring their impact becomes essential to understanding how these services contribute to improved financial health, economic empowerment, and inclusive growth. Effective impact measurement allows institutions to assess outcomes, identify gaps, enhance product design, and strengthen accountability to regulators, donors, and consumers.

Impact Measurement in Digital Financial Services Training Course equips participants with the frameworks, tools, and methodologies needed to measure the social, economic, and operational impact of DFS initiatives. Through case studies, applied exercises, and global best practices, participants will gain practical skills in defining impact indicators, collecting and analyzing data, integrating digital tools for monitoring, and using insights to guide strategic decision-making for sustainable and client-centric digital finance programs.
