

Training course on Sustainable Tourism Policy and Planning

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Tourism and hospitality	Duration	10 Days
Base Fee	$3,000 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

In an era of increasing global awareness regarding environmental degradation, social inequality, and economic instability, Sustainable Tourism Policy and Planning has emerged as a paramount discipline for shaping the future of the travel industry. It's about developing and implementing strategies that ensure tourism contributes positively to environmental conservation, cultural preservation, economic development, and social well-being, both for current and future generations. Beyond simply "greening" individual tourism businesses, sustainable tourism requires a holistic, integrated approach at the destination level, guided by robust policies, comprehensive planning frameworks, and collaborative governance. For government officials, destination managers, urban planners, and tourism industry leaders, mastering this field is essential for balancing the economic benefits of tourism with its potential negative impacts, ensuring long-term resilience and fostering genuine local prosperity. Failure to strategically plan for sustainability can lead to over-tourism, resource depletion, cultural erosion, and a decline in destination appeal. Training Course on Sustainable Tourism Policy and Planning is meticulously designed to equip aspiring and current government officials, destination management organization (DMO) professionals, urban and regional planners, tourism consultants, non-profit leaders, and industry executives with the advanced theoretical insights and intensive practical tools necessary to excel in Sustainable Tourism Policy and Planning. We will delve into sophisticated methodologies for stakeholder engagement and consensus building, master the intricacies of developing integrated sustainable tourism plans, and explore cutting-edge approaches to policy formulation and implementation. A significant focus will be placed on understanding international frameworks and indicators, managing environmental and social impacts, fostering community participation, and developing diversified economic models. Furthermore, the course will cover essential aspects of monitoring, evaluation, crisis management for sustainable destinations, and leveraging technology for smart planning. By integrating international best practices, analyzing real-world successful sustainable destinations, and engaging in hands-on policy development exercises, attendees will develop the strategic acumen to lead transformative change, foster unparalleled destination resilience, and secure their position as leaders in the forefront of global sustainable tourism development.
